

SAINT ALBERT the GREAT
(1206-1280)
Patron Saint of Scientists
Feast day - November 15th

As a young man, Albert studied at the University of Padua, in 1223 he entered the Dominican order, and in 1225 he went to Cologne. At that time, he was thinking of leaving religious life, but the Holy Virgin Mary appeared to him to promise her support if he continued to walk the spiritual path.

In 1241, he went to the University of Paris, where he lectured in theology. In 1248, he set up a house of studies for the order in Cologne, where he took his small band of budding theologians, the chief of whom was Thomas Aquinas, who became his greatest pupil. In 1260, he was appointed bishop of Regensburg, but he resigned after three years. In his later years, he resided in Cologne and he took part in the Council of Lyons.

It was in Cologne that his reputation as a scientist grew. He carried on experiments in chemistry and physics in his makeshift laboratory and built up a collection of plants, insects, and chemical compounds that gave substance to his reputation. He was friend and adviser to popes, bishops, kings, and statesmen and made his own unique contribution to the learning of his age. He died in Cologne on November 15, 1280, and is buried in St. Andrea's Church in that city. His writings are remarkable for their exact scientific knowledge, and for that reason he has been made the patron saint of scientists.

2nd Collection Next Weekend

We will have a 2nd Collection next weekend for the Catholic Campaign for Human Development

The month of November is dedicated to praying for the souls in purgatory. What is purgatory? The Catechism of the Catholic Church defines purgatory as a "Purification, so as to achieve the holiness necessary to enter the joy of heaven," which is experienced by those "who die in God's grace and friendship, but still imperfectly purified" (CCC 1030). Celebrate the Sacrament of Confession or Reconciliation Often.
